Dear Ms. Rossi and Ms. Burg,

This letter serves as a formal request for written, specific rationale regarding Velair Property Management's decision not to renew my lease at Lexington Flats, Unit #104. Your September 4th email references "run-ins" and "vocal" behavior, yet fails to provide any factual basis or documentation supporting a lease violation or cause for non-renewal.

I assert my rights under Minnesota Statutes § 504B.285 and § 504B.441, which prohibit retaliation against tenants who assert legal rights, report misconduct, or challenge false allegations. My prior cease-and-desist letter—submitted on September 3rd—outlined documented harassment and retaliation by your onsite property manager, Lisa Burg. Your subsequent communications, including threats of eviction and refusal to engage in dialogue, appear retaliatory and lack merit.

When we attempted to address these claims directly with Ms. Burg, we were shouted at, had the door slammed in our faces, and she called the police. Your refusal to discuss the alleged violation or allow us to dispute it further underscores the retaliatory nature of this decision. Denying tenants the opportunity to respond or clarify alleged infractions violates principles of due process and good-faith management.

Additionally, Velair's lease renewal process has been inconsistent and procedurally flawed. In prior years, we were told leases would renew automatically due to the absence of onsite staff. This year, a lease was offered and signed by myself and my roommate, and returned to the leasing office on August 30, 2025, despite being originally offered on or around August 13, 2025. Management required us to backdate our lease to a start date months before it was actually signed. Such irregularities undermine the legitimacy of your non-renewal claim and suggest a pattern of administrative negligence or retaliatory control.

I request the following within five (5) business days:

1. A written explanation detailing the specific lease violations or behavioral incidents cited as grounds for non-renewal.
2. Copies of any incident reports, lease infractions, or communications used to justify this decision.
3. Confirmation that Velair Property Management will cease retaliatory actions and engage in good-faith resolution.

Failure to respond will be documented as part of a formal complaint to the Minnesota Department of Human Rights, and may result in legal action including a Tenant Remedies Action and a request for injunctive relief through Dakota County District Court.

I remain committed to resolving this matter constructively and expect your cooperation in upholding tenant rights and legal standards.

Sincerely,
Bradley A. Crowe

Bradley,

I must respectfully disagree with the statement that there has been no communication regarding this situation. I have attempted to respond on two separate occasions this week to the voicemail left by Dena.

As for the reasoning behind the non-renewal of your lease, both the House Rules and the Lease Agreement clearly state that residents are expected to conduct themselves in a professional manner at all times.

Unfortunately, there have been multiple incidents in which Bradley has interacted with Velair staff in a belligerent manner while appearing to be under the influence. During the most recent incident, which resulted in Lisa contacting law enforcement, Bradley again appeared to be under the influence and failed to conduct himself in a professional manner.

Please be reminded that, per the Lease Agreement you signed, Velair reserves the right to non-renew a lease at the time of renewal.

Given the nature and frequency of these incidents, the lease violations will stand, as will the decision not to renew the lease.

Thank you,
Jodelle Rossi
